

Abstract

The present invention is related to a planar inverted F antenna (PIFA), which the antenna portion is allocated on a quality conductive metal element within the electronic unit. The antenna portion and the metal element are incorporated into a single component.